I am happy to have the opportunity to recommend Evans Panton to anyone who is experiencing a career transition.

Speaking of my own experience in working with Evans, not having had to seek a job for around 10 years before I was downsized, I was more than a bit rusty in the skill set needed to seek out new employment. Not just the mechanics of where to look for jobs and resume preparation but also the issue of interviewing well and following up with the recruiter post-interview.

Evans not only advised me on such basic issues as resume formatting, he also coached me on how to best market myself as a skilled professional seeking employment. Evans ran through practice interviews with me and he helped me to regain some of the confidence I lost in having lost my job. I think of any of the great things Evans did for me the most important was helping to shore up my flagging self-confidence at a point when I really needed to feel a bit more confident of my own job skills.

Even in this extremely tough job market with Evans' assistance I was able to secure a new position within a month of being laid off. I cannot do justice to the thorough job that Evans did in assisting me to find new employment. I would not hesitate to recommend his services with my highest recommendation to anyone experiencing a career transition.

Sincerely,
